Senate Panel to Call Tongsun Park

The Senate Select Committee on Ethics has decided to summon rice dealer Tongsun Park to give public testimony in its Korean lobbying probe. The panel's special counsel said he probably will not suggest punishment of any serving senator.

Although the committee set no specific date, Chairman Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill., said yesterday that the panel would hold its first open hearings on the Korean matter "as soon as practical" and Special Counsel Victor Kramer said that likely will be in the second half of May.
